

High Tea Menu

A Brief History of High Tea

Legend has it that afternoon tea was started by the Duchess of Bedford in the mid-1800s, she found herself with a "sinking feeling." This was likely fatigue from hunger during the long wait between meals. Lamps were recently introduced in wealthier homes and eating a late dinner (around 8 or 9 p.m.) became fashionable.

She decided to invite friends over for assorted snacks and tea, and the idea of an afternoon tea gathering spread across high society, becoming today a major component of many British Meals, including Breakfast, Elevenses or Afternoon Tea.
